Showers of Good Fortune

A memorable freezing rain fell for the groundbreaking for Green Ridge House, and a June downpour for its ribbon-cutting ceremony. If those rainy afternoons connected with one of our city's great achievements set a precedent, the festivities Sunday to kick off GHI's new rehabilitation program took place in a shower of good fortune. Intermittent drizzles and heavier rains falling throughout the afternoon did not deter a large gathering of residents, friends and officials from participating in the ceremonies at North End School inaugurating the program. Many even ventured out into the weather to watch a demonstration of insulation material being pumped within the walls of a nearby frame home.

Greenbelt, as the first planned community in the United States, has an assured place in history. GHI, the recipient now of the largest federal rehabilitation grant under HUD Section 512, may be forging a new place in history as prototype for a national policy to conserve what is valuable from our past.

Greenbelt came into history on the winds of change. May the gentler weather of that autumn rain portend a spring renewal.

CARES Starts Parent Discussion Group

Raising children, especially adolescents, can be an extremely frustrating and thankless task. Drug use, unwanted pregnancy, chronic truancy and an assortment of other issues can easily reach crisis proportions in any family. In these situations, the young person's inability to hear parental advice or follow mandates helps escalate the conflict. Before long, parent and young person are not communicating effectively about anything. The generation gap becomes an ocean of anger, rejection, threats and tears.

Greenbelt CARES is now accepting applications for a Parent Discussion Group to begin October 15. The group will be co-led by Jim Holmes and Wendy Wexler, CARES' juvenile counselors, and will meet every other Monday at 7:30 p.m. Single persons or couples are welcome to apply by calling Greenbelt CARES at 345-6660.

Although some formal presentation and exercises will be offered by the co-leaders, this will not be a counseling or therapy group. Simply stated, a discussion group draws on the collective knowledge, skills, and experiences of its members. Through sharing ideas and brainstorming strategies, parents can help one another increase their effectiveness as parents. This format has been highly successful in the past and has the important advantage of being responsive to the specific and unique needs of group members.

The tentative agenda for this Parent Discussion Group includes such topics as values clarification, communication, drug abuse, and sexuality. If demand exceeds limited space, other groups will be organized. Closing date for applications is October 10.

boxes for the public on a "help yourself" basis.

The Greenbelt Library has about 40 manila envelopes, each for a type of coupon (e.g., bread products, coffee, etc.), in a large box near their consumer guides. Staff and public donate the coupons and a volunteer keeps them sorted.

Sanford H. Cornett

Sanford H. Cornett, age 60, of 14 Greenway Pl., died Tuesday morning. He had been a resident of Greenbelt for 30 years.

Mr. Cornett had retired from the General Accounting Office and had come out of retirement to work for the Office of Technology Assessment of the United States Congress. He was a graduate of Baylor University, Waco, Texas. During World War II, he served as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Force where he had been a glider pilot instructor.

Active in local politics, Mr. Cornett was a past president of the North End PTA and a founding member and president of the Greenbelt Soccer Association. He was second vice-president of the Greenbelt Lions Club and had formerly been that organization's treasurer. Mr. Cornett was an instructor of the Potomac River Power Squadron.

He is survived by his wife, Stephanie Falcon of the home, and children, Joseph, former Greenbelt resident; Adrienne Beaumont, Carrboro, North Carolina; William of the home, who is presently in England under a University of Maryland study program; and Tod, of the home.

A memorial service was held by the Lions Club on Wednesday night at 8 at Beall's Funeral Home, Lanham. Graveside services were held at noon today at Cheltenham National Cemetery.

Expressions of sympathy may be made in the form of contributions to the Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring.

Capitol Cadillac Sign Okayed Nothing New on Post Office

by Leta Mach

On Thursday, September 13, the County Planning Board approved the Capital Cadillac site plan amendment for a high rise sign near the Beltway. Capital Cadillac vice-president Jack Curlett told the News Review the sign was "in the best interests of our business and in the best possible taste." He hoped to erect the blue and white company sign before October 9, the official grand opening of the car dealership.

Jack Blevens from the County Planning Board staff felt the sign had been approved for a combination of reasons. First, there wasn't enough reason or legal basis to disapprove the sign and second, a low-lying sign would not fulfill the purpose of the applicants. The reason Capital Cadillac gave for changing from a low-lying sign was that there was not a location where such a sign could be seen from both Greenbelt Road and the Beltway from all directions. Blevens further added that this was the first sign reviewed by the Planning Board. Generally county regulations deal merely with the square footage and type of sign. He noted that it was an unusual situation because the Planning Board had created the condition of reviewing any sign for the site.

The city was represented at the morning hearing by Assistant City Manager Dennis Piendak. Although the Planning Board staff recommended approval of the sign, the commissioners directed them to explore other alternatives. However, after Piendak left David Freishtat, attorney for Capital Cadillac, in a second appearance before the Planning Board, asked that the issue be settled and not deferred. Blevens, Freishtat, and Curlett then drove to the site and looked at six possible locations for a low-lying sign. However, none was found with good visibility from both roads in both directions. At the afternoon hearing, the high sign was approved 2-1 with one abstention in view of the fact a city representative could not be present.

Post Office

"It's been quiet," replied David Richards from the National Capital Planning Commission (NCPC) when asked about developments in the proposed new Greenbelt Post Office. He explained that the last he heard the Postal Service planned to leave customer services in the center and look for another site for distribution facilities. "The important thing is they seem to have given up the Parkway site," he added. When the postal service does select a site, the selection will be sent to NCPC for approval.

During the spring the Post Office sought the informal reaction of the city to parcel 8 or parcel 2. Parcel 8 is located between Kenilworth and Ridge Road, north of Crescent. The land was purchased partially with federal and state funds and is pledged as green space. In addition, council members felt the location at the entrance to the city was not good. Council also objected to parcel 2 off Hamilton Place because it was an inaccessible location and trucks would need to drive through a residential area.

The city sent a list of privately-owned land it might consider for the distribution site to the Postal Service. The list included subdivided land at Beltway Plaza, property at the end of Hanover Parkway, part of parcel 15 near the American Legion, and property near Edmonston Road and Kenilworth Avenue extended. In addition, Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission officials have sent a list of seven publicly-owned vacant sites in the Greenbelt area to Theodore Wade, Post Office Realty Management and Acquisition Specialist.

Greenbelt Postmaster Emory

Harman stated that he had not heard anything about the new building. However, he added he was "still hoping". In the meantime, the post office is being repainted for the first time since 1972 by the landlord, George Christacos.

GHI NOTES

The Advisory Committee on Personnel Policies and Procedures will meet on Friday, October 12, at 8 p.m., in the GHI Board Room to discuss some of the findings which have come up through their discussions with GHI management and staff. All members are welcome to attend this meeting.

The regular board meeting is scheduled for Thursday, October 11, at 8 a.m.

Police Blotter

The murder which took place in the parking lot at the American Legion last summer went on trial on September 24 and continued for three days. The jury found the accused guilty of voluntary manslaughter and carrying a deadly weapon.

A "till-tap," a theft from the cash register when the clerk is distracted, was reported at High's on Centerway. A short time later Pfc. Lann arrested a man, who was charged and transported to Hyattsville.

The manager of the A&P at Beltway Plaza called to report a man had taken three hams and was leaving the store without paying. When he was stopped by the manager, the suspect pulled a knife and ran from the store. A lookout was given to area police cars and a few minutes later Cpl. Fulgham arrested the man. He was charged with assault and concealing a deadly weapon.

GHI Rehabilitation Kick-off Attracts Large Gathering for Speeches and Insulation Demo

by Mary Lou Williamson

Last Sunday afternoon Greenbelters again proved that it takes more than a little rain and a Redskins game to keep them at home. More than 200 members and friends of Greenbelt Homes joined board and staff at the North End School to celebrate together the start of their multi-million dollar rehabilitation venture. After years of planning for the most cost-effective and energy-saving renovation of the 40-year-old homes and struggling for more than a year to find a reasonable means of financing the work, GHI is ready to begin. And, just in case anyone was still doubtful, a demonstration crew was busy installing insulation next door at 7-A and 7-B Laurel Hill.

"Renovation is the most important event for GHI since its construction some 40 years ago," GHI president Don Volk told his warmly receptive audience. "The program is designed to reduce our heating bills. Now that we have finally gotten everyone to agree on what to do and how to finance it, the real work, which will take several years, can begin." The purpose, he noted, is "energy-savings"; the cause has been the dramatic rise in the price of heating oil. "In the eight years I have served on the board, I have seen the price of oil rise from 13 cents per gallon to 75 cents. Insulation and new windows to cut down on heat loss are the core of the program," he said.

Volk reminded those present that GHI, in its heat-conservation projects initiated since 1973, has already cut its total fuel consumption from 2.2 million gallons per year to 1.6. If GHI can now reduce that figure to "1.2 or maybe 1.1, then we will have cut our fuel use in half in less than ten years."

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has committed $6.4 million in loans to GHI to be repaid at 3% over 20 years under its section 312 program. Speaking for HUD, Nick Farr delighted the audience: "I gather Greenbelt has always been a unique community—first when it was built and later as the only one of the four green towns to become a co-operative owned by its residents. Greenbelt has maintained itself as a unique community for 40 years." Farr is Deputy Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Development.

Farr praised GHI and the representatives of various governmental agencies for putting together in a short time "a very complicated joint venture: the largest 312 rehabilitation program in the country, both in the amount of money committed and in the number of housing units; among the largest section 8 substantial rehabilitation housing assistance programs in the country; virtually the only program that puts both sources of financing together and the only one that is a co-operative." Furthermore, he added, the overall program includes "substantial Community Development Block grant funds (one million dollars), possibly city revenue bonds, Maryland state housing rehabilitation funds and private sector financing. Putting the whole thing together is quite an accomplishment," he reiterated.

"We like it," Farr smiled, "We like it because we can see how our programs can work together, particularly over the next few years. Energy conservation," he speculated, "is going to be where the action is in the eighties and you people are way ahead . . . So we'll be watching very closely."

Farr was impressed with GHI as an economically "integrated community—persons of all income levels can live here. The low-interest 3% 312 loan will mean that those with middle incomes can remain here. Section 8 housing assistance payments will make it possible for persons with very low incomes, particularly the elderly, to remain here and not pay more than a quarter of their income on housing. The expense of this rehabilitation would be intolerable," he emphasized, "for these two groups were it not for our programs. These people could not otherwise stay in this extraordinarily attractive place to live."

Farr also told the audience that there will be an affirmative action program to offer this community as a place for minorities in the area to consider as a place to live.

Congratulations

Public officials in person or by letter offered congratulations to the co-operative community. "Greenbelt has always had a program for tomorrow," wrote Congresswoman Spellman, "and has regularly affirmed its dedication to the well-being of its families and community." She too commented on "the uniqueness of Greenbelt. The City," she wrote, "has made the most of the land-use planning which was its heritage and has respected and preserved the human values which inspired the original dream."

Director of Licenses and Permits for Prince Georges County, William Gullett, who was personally representing County Executive Larry Hogan, was impressed, he said, though not surprised, by the size of the turn out. Calling Greenbelt "one of the most knowledgeable communities" in the county, he ventured a guess that "somewhere else only 5 or 6 people would have shown up." Hogan "is interested in upgrading the housing stock of the county. You may have read in today's paper that he wants only homes costing more than $85,000. What makes even more sense," Gullett said, "is upgrading what we have." Speaking for his own department, he said "We will put our full resources into working with you."

County Councilman Frank Casula offered congratulations to GHI, praising the hard work, enthusiasm and the ability to overcome its periodic internal squabbles. The audience, in good humor, laughed.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld reviewed for the audience the city's involvement in the revitalization of the GHI neighborhood. With the assistance of CDBG funds in an on-going program the city has been "undertaking a variety of public improvements in the GHI neighborhoods," principally the reconstruction of some of the original streets. "The city is proud to offer its assistance to GHI and to participate in this exciting endeavor," Weidenfeld said. "I look forward to joining with you in celebrating the completion of this program in the near future."

CITY OF GREENBELT STATEMENT

by Mayor Gil Weidenfeld

The rehabilitation program being inaugurated by Greenbelt Homes today is the most extensive in the history of the City. . . . GHI and the City have worked together in many ways to the benefit of both. We have fought for the controlled development of our city in a manner befitting the high standards of planning set forth for the original Greenbelt development. We have worked to protect our environment, avoid being turned into a massive highway interchange and to preserve green space.

Now, the members of GHI are inaugurating this extensive rehabilitation program after years of planning and deliberation. The hard work of the Board of Directors and the GHI staff has resulted in GHI and its members being assisted in the rehabilitation program with a low interest Federal loan and Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments for those members having low incomes. . . .

The City Council looks forward to working with GHI to successfully complete this major undertaking. While GHI will be improving the homes, the City, with the assistance of Federal Community Development Block Grant Funds allocated to us by Prince George's County, will be undertaking a variety of public improvements in the GHI neighborhoods.

This summer, the City began installing playground equipment throughout GHI neighborhood playgrounds as a first step in rehabilitating and improving these small park areas.

Two other community development projects — the reconstruction of Research Road and the construction of a new sidewalk between Ridge and the Center Mall — now in the engineering stages, will benefit GHI as well as other city residents. We expect to begin design work shortly on the reconstruction of Hillside Road between Research and Laurel Hill with the construction of a pedestrian underpass in order to bring a new walkway to the North End.

In future years we expect to reconstruct Ridge Road from Eastway to Southway and Plateau Place. All of that work will be done with Block Grant Funds.

With City funds we have undertaken this summer the reconstruction of Crescent Road from Gardenway to Parkway, the reconstruction of Hillside Road from Northway to Laurel Hill and the reconstruction of Laurel Hill from Hillside to Ridge. These projects should be completed shortly with the resurfacing of the streets by a paving contractor. The City Council is currently considering the feasibility of a major capital improvement program which would include further street and public improvements in the GHI area.

The City will be participating directly in the rehabilitation of GHI homes by employing a rehabilitation loan specialist to assist GHI residents in making application for state and possibly federal rehabilitation loans for home improvements over and above those to be done by GHI. This position should be filled by mid-October, and this individual will serve as a coordinator of Housing Rehabilitation throughout the City, with a primary initial responsibility of assisting GHI. This position is also funded with Community Development Block Grant funds.

Lastly, with the strong support of Greenbelt voters who approved giving the City Council authority to issue revenue bonds for rehabilitation projects, the City stands ready to consider other financing needs of the GHI rehabilitation program, if necessary. There is now available still another means for obtaining low cost financing to assure the total success of this worthy project.

The City is proud to offer its assistance to GHI and to participate in this exciting endeavor . . .

Greenbelt Homes president Don Volk, assisted by Mayor Gil Weidenfeld, cuts the cake celebrating the start of GHI's rehabilitation program. The three tiers of the cake, designed by member Janet James, represent GHI, Prince Georges County and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development working together. Member Dot Varda baked and decorated the cake.

Workmen demonstrate installation of Cellin, cellulose insulation, which is blown into the outside walls through one inch holes. Bill Glass, representing the contractor, Universal, was on hand to answer questions. "No, Cellin will not burn. Yes, it is termite and varmint proof. Yes, the contractor will guarantee to fill the cavity 100%. No, there is no odor. All work will be done from the outside."

The drizzling rain did not seem to discourage the steady stream of members who walked the short distance from North End School to 7-A and 7-B Laurel Hill to observe the process. A large white pine tree in front of the building provided some shelter.

Erosion Control Work at Lake Park Is High City Priority

by Leta Mach

City Council received two reports about recreation facilities at its August 13 meeting. The Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB) report requested that council review previous reports on the Greenbelt Lake Park because "conservation of the Greenbelt Lake Park and allocation of funds to prevent further deterioration is of highest priority." After council questioned City Manager James Giese about the work the city was doing at the lake, it moved to refer the action of the city manager to PRAB.

Although PRAB agreed the projects of the past year were "positive beginnings," it wanted "a more extensive program." "Except for time frame and different feelings of the degree of criticalness," Giese did not think there were any inconsistencies between PRAB recommendations and the city erosion control work at the lake. Council has approved a three year soil and lawn rehabilitation program for the area of the bandstand.

One of the reports PRAB recommended be reviewed was the Soil Conservation Report of November 1978. After a site analysis, the personnel of the Soil Conservation Service made several recommendations. One of these was that the tile drain and drainage from the bandstand be improved and the eroded area be filled with topsoil and revegetated. Part of this area was improved last year with composted sludge from the Agricultural Research Center and then reseeded. Eroded areas along the shore near the dam have been worked on this year. Giese said the city has also regarded the area of heaviest erosion by the bandstand and worked on the water drainage problem there. The city crews have also completed placing riprap along the banks of the peninsula, an action recommended in the 1978 report. The silt traps for the two lake feeder streams have also recently been cleared out with a drag line.

In general Giese agreed with the PRAB report, which found the overall appearance of the park good. The report felt the lake and the shoreline should be deepened in some areas. It also found that the overflow structure for the lake was in need of repair. Another suggestion was that access areas for the lake should be designated to eliminate erosion from pedestrian traffic, but Giese, in his comments last fall on the report, expressed his view that regrading would be better than an "artificial walkway."

At the August 13 council meeting Councilman Richard Castaldi queried the safety in using sludge. However, Councilmen Thomas White and Charles Schwan felt the material would not have been released if there were any concern about it. Giese next recalled an old proposal for a new service road at the lake instead of the present one through the playground. Mayor Richard Pilski felt the next council should consider the matter.

Council also received a report from the Advisory Planning Board (APB) recommending that it urge the county executive to support

Holy Cross Nursery School Expanded

The Education Committee of Holy Cross Lutheran Church, in a recent meeting, decided to make changes in their weekday nursery program. These changes offer more options to parents of pre-school children.

The school will now accept children for 2, 3, or 5 days a week in a nursery or kindergarten program. Children ages 3½ through 5 are eligible.

Mrs. Mildred Beachboard will continue as the teacher. She has taught all ages of pre-school as well as some elementary grades.

The school is located at 6905 Greenbelt Road, across from Charlestown Village and University Square Apartments. Sessions run from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and visitors are welcome. Those wishing to talk with the teacher are asked to call 345-5111 before or after school hours. Applications and registration information are available through the church office at the same address and phone number.

Concerned about high heating bills?
Read this:

New gas furnaces use up to 13% less gas.

Gas heat has cost less than electric heat in this area for many years. But you may not have heard that the new gas furnaces are even more economical than older ones. They can save 13% of gas consumption, according to a computer study by the National Bureau of Standards. The reason? Pilotless ignition and automatic vent dampers.

What does that tell you about gas heating today? It's better because it saves energy -- and saves you money.

pilotless ignition

A spark ignites the gas burner when it's needed. There's no pilot light to waste gas.

automatic vent damper

Closes when the gas burner is off. Stops heat from escaping up the chimney.
